

Canada's Got Talent Winner Already Predicted!

KITCHENER, ON - There may not be a single contestant, judge or host confirmed for the highly anticipated premiere of Canada's Got Talent; but the winning name is already predicted.

Impossible right? Ryan Joyce doesn't think so.

"I know who is going to win Canada's Got Talent. " says Joyce on a website that's already going viral among the social media sites. "By the time you view this video my prediction will be well hidden under heavy surveillance."

The man claiming to have predicted the million dollar winning act should know a few things about the impossible. He is an illusionist who has already demonstrated his abilities to redefine logic. He's made firetrucks disappear into thin air, levitated a 2 ton SUV and vanished over 100 politicians.

Ryan Joyce claims to have written his prediction of the million dollar talent winner's name on a piece of paper that is detained in a secure location until later this year when he will make his prediction available to the viewing public.

"After auditions take place this coming fall I will move my prediction out of hiding and into the open, available for viewing by anyone in a very public location."

The remaining details are being kept secret, however the illusionist does plan showcasing his talents for Canada.. "I've already registered to audition and looking forward to being apart of some great Canadian television"

To view the video and for more information visit : www.gottalentwinner.ca and www.ryanjoyce.com

###

For more information please contact Ryan Joyce 1-866-825-5817 ext 2 email: ryan@theatrix-int.com. You can visit www.gottalentwinner.ca for high quality images or to download the original prediction video for rebroadcasting purposes.